In his captivating and inspiring memoir, All Better Now, Conrad Goeringer chronicles his harrowing journey through addiction, recovery, and redemption. With raw honesty and unflinching detail, Goeringer paints a vivid portrait of the darkness and despair that consumed him during his years of drug use.

Goeringer's story begins in the idyllic suburbs of New Jersey, where he seemed to have it all: a loving family, a promising future, and a carefree adolescence. But beneath the surface, Goeringer was struggling with deep-seated insecurities and a longing for something more. This void led him down a dangerous path, and by the age of 18, he was addicted to heroin.

Over the next several years, Goeringer's life spiraled out of control. He lost his job, his relationships, and his health. He became a slave to his addiction, willing to do anything to get high. But even at his lowest point, Goeringer never gave up hope.

With the help of a supportive family and friends, Goeringer eventually found his way into recovery. Through hard work and dedication, he overcame his addiction and began to rebuild his life. Today, Goeringer is a successful businessman, author, and motivational speaker. He uses his platform to share his story and inspire others who are struggling with addiction.

All Better Now is a powerful and moving account of one man's journey from the depths of despair to the heights of recovery. Goeringer's story is a testament to the power of hope, resilience, and the human spirit. It is a must-read for anyone who has ever struggled with addiction or who knows someone who has.
