The Classic Route: A Legacy of Mountaineering

Mt. McKinley's Classic Route is a well-established path that has been forged by generations of intrepid climbers. It offers a challenging yet rewarding ascent, taking you through diverse terrain and exposing you to stunning alpine scenery.

The route begins at the Kahiltna Glacier Base Camp, where you will gear up and acclimatize to the altitude. From there, you will traverse the Kahiltna Glacier, passing by towering icefalls and crevasses, before establishing Camp 1 at 7,200 feet.

As you ascend, the route leads you through the West Buttress, where you will encounter steep ice and snow slopes. Camp 2, nestled at 11,200 feet, offers a breathtaking view of the surrounding peaks.

The crux of the Classic Route is the Denali Pass, a narrow and exposed section of ice that requires technical skill and precise route-finding. Once you conquer this challenge, you will reach the Football Field, a vast expanse of snow and ice that leads to Camp 3 at 14,000 feet.

From Camp 3, you will ascend the Upper Denali Glacier and tackle the final summit pyramid, a steep and unforgiving slope. The summit of Mt. McKinley, the highest point in North America, will greet you with unparalleled views and a sense of accomplishment that will stay with you forever.
