This captivating book is a journey through time and place, using the clues left behind in our homes to tell the stories of the people who lived there before us.

Author Sarah Jane Evans takes us on a tour of her own home, a 19th-century farmhouse in upstate New York. As she uncovers the secrets of her home's past, she also uncovers the stories of the people who lived there before her. There's the farmer who built the house in 1840, the family who raised their children there, and the artist who found inspiration in its walls.

Evans's journey is not just about her own home. It's about all of our homes. The places we live in are filled with the stories of the people who came before us. And by uncovering those stories, we can learn more about ourselves.

Guess Who Lives Here Now is a beautifully written and deeply moving book that will stay with you long after you finish reading it. It's a book that will make you appreciate your own home in a new way and that will inspire you to uncover the stories of the people who lived there before you.

Praise for Guess Who Lives Here Now

"A fascinating and beautifully written exploration of the lives of those who have come before us. Evans brings the past to life in a way that is both intimate and deeply moving."— New York Times Book Review
